

Pipol ERP Readiness Assessment

An ERP project can impact your whole organization. So how realistic, actionable, and financially sound is your international ERP project? If you're overwhelmed by the magnitude of considerations and decisions you're facing, we can help.

Pipol has just launched a new ERP Readiness Assessment, designed to help companies like yours determine their readiness before launching in.

You'll get answers to all your questions. Guaranteed.

By investing in a Readiness Assessment, you'll get clarity on how your ERP project impacts your whole organization. Everything will be reviewed and aligned: business processes, workforce, data, and interfaces, as well as international complexities.

Our ERP Readiness Assessment will simplify the path

We'll work closely with your key stakeholders and executives, to assess the level of readiness on Organization, Processes, Project Team, Alignment, Solution, System, and Governance.

What you'll get from the Readiness Assessment

You'll receive a 360-degree business assessment; an assessment of organizational readiness; a report with findings and recommendations for action areas; an estimation of your total investment; and, critical next steps. These take-aways will empower your organization with full awareness before you proceed with investments in new digital transformation.
